CEO, President of the Board of Directors and Founder ti&m AG

"Don't trust anyone who can't innovate."

Thomas Wüst studied computer science at ETH Zurich and has more than 30 years' experience in IT-based innovation. He founded ti&m AG in 2005 and has led the company since then as its CEO.

He was CEO of sd&m AG Switzerland, an IT subsidiary of Capgemini, from 2002 to early 2005. He had previously had P&L responsibility for the application development department of a Swiss consultancy firm for 6 years. Prior to moving in to consultancy, he worked for a bank and an insurer for three years each.

He has successfully implemented numerous projects in the finance industry as a strategy consultant, architect and project manager, building up a rich store of experience covering a wide range of issues, architectures and solutions.

He has published several books and many journal articles during his career. Innovation and the associated strategies and solutions are still at the heart of what he does.

He built up ti&m – technology, innovation & management – to become the leading innovation and digitalization company in Switzerland with a strategy consistently focused on locally and multifunctionally operating teams. The open product lines ti&m channel suite, ti&m banking suite, ti&m security suite and ti&m places have created a basis for digitalization projects that fosters innovation and entrepreneurialism in a competitive environment.

He has founded creative platforms for unconventional perspectives on the challenges of digitalization in the form of ti&m garage, a creative space for developing innovations, the youth development program hack an app and the annual art@work project.

As a member of the steering committee of digitalswitzerland and co-founder of professional groups and associations related to IT, he is a significant driving force in the Swiss IT scene.
